

The Hero of Steel

Hasnain Ashraf

The door art is titled "The Hero of Steel" or "El héroe del acero." It features Superman, the well-known superhero, who symbolizes a foreigner or immigrant. Although not everyone acknowledges him, he is the one who holds the world together and is the savior of the Earth. The artist behind this piece is Diego Rivera, a Mexican artist. The door painting is directly inspired by Rivera's "Cabbage Seller."

The grocery bag placed next to Superman in the artwork symbolizes Walmart. The pencils and notebooks on the door represent the school supplies children collect annually at Walmart. These supplies honor the children who were a part of the Walmart event.

Superman is the perfect superhero to represent immigrants because, like them, he is a hard worker and savior who does not receive adequate recognition for his good deeds. Despite receiving hate from humans for being an alien, he feels a duty to protect them because of his unique abilities. He is genuinely a fantastic superhero.
