

July 21, 1986

Dear Roots of Navajo Relocation Series Reader:

Faced with the lack of funds and worsening financial condition, Redhouse/Wright Productions of Albuquerque has decided to terminate its Navajo historical research and publication program and involuntarily relocate into the real world beginning in September. Part V of the Roots of Navajo Relocation Series will (hopefully) be published and distributed in August. Part VI tentatively entitled "Among The Waters: Paradise Found, Paradise Lost" and a special prototype for another series "On Navajo Patriotism: The Sacrifice of the Seventies" will be available in unpublished manuscript form sometime in September. Write if you're interested in receiving these xeroxed classics as well--probably at cost and third-class postage.

Thank you for your unflinching support and kind words of encouragement during our two-year attempt to reanalyze and rewrite Navajo history from a Navajo perspective. We will now leave it to other Dine' to carry on this important work.

In Beauty,

John Redhouse for
Redhouse/Wright
Productions

P.S. Does anybody have $2500 I can borrow?